This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

HISTORICAL SKETCH.

ALEXANDER McALLISTER came from Loup, Islay, off Argyleshire, Scotland, to Wilmington, N. C., U. S. A., in the year 1736, and stopped at Wilmington for some years, keeping a tavern there, as boarding houses were then called. This appears from a letter addressed to him from a McAllister and a McRae from the old country, inquiring as to Hector, son of Margaret Johnston McNeill and Laughlin McNeill, who had come to America with him the year before. This letter was not dated by the writers, but was dated on the back by Alexander McAllister, as was his custom with all his letters on receipt of them, and the date is 1737.

He returned to Scotland in 1739 or 1740, and there married Mary McNeill, who died, and was buried at sea, on the return voyage to America. His third wife (to be), Jane or Jean Colvin, was born on the same voyage over, as her parents were coming, too, to this country. The date of her birth is September 20, 1740.

It is one of the stories of the time that Mr. McAllister, annoyed by the crying of the baby, said to the mother, "Spank the little b——," and received the sharp reply, "Never mind, sir, she'll be the wife of ye yet," and so she was; they were married July 14, 1763. She was then aged twenty-three years.

On his return to North Carolina he settled in Cumberland county—till 1754, Upper Bladen—on the east side of the Cape Fear River, about twelve miles from Fayetteville, and about two miles from the Bluff Church. He married for his second wife Flora McNeill, whose mother was Grissella Campbell, aunt of Farquhar Campbell, and whose father was the far-famed Scotch pioneer, Neill McNeill, called "Black Neill," on account of his dark, swarthy complexion, and as a distinction from the bahn, or fair-skinned, McNeills.

He reared two families of children in the home there erected. His eldest son, Alexander McAllister, reared his children there. His eldest grandson, Alexander McAllister, reared his children there, the eldest being in his eighteenth year, and the youngest in his thirteenth year, when the death of the father, 13th July, 1857, broke up the home. The old home, in good condition, passed into the hands of strangers, but was burned about 1863, during the war between the States. The origin of the fire was never known, as the house was unoccupied at the time.

The Bluff Church was organized in 1758, and he was one of the original elders; his eldest son, Alexander, succeeded him, and was, in turn, succeeded by his eldest son, Alexander. Now, 1900, his great-grandson, Alexander McAllister, is a ruling elder in the same church, while many of his descendants fill the same office elsewhere.

He attained a position of honorable prominence, and filled a number of important offices in the State and in the service of the colonies during the war of the revolution.

1. "He was colonel of the Cumberland County Militia."—Wheeler's History of North Carolina, page 81; Colonial Records, North Carolina, Vol. X., pp. 207-531.

2. "He was member from Cumberland of the Provincial Congress held at Hillsboro, N. C., August 21, 1775."—Wheeler's History of North Carolina, p. 125; Colonial Records, Vol. X., p. 165.

3. Member from Cumberland of the Provincial Congress, held at Halifax April 4, 1776.—Wheeler's History of North Carolina, p. 78; Colonial Records, Vol. X., p. 499.

4. Member of Committee of Safety for Wilmington District.—Wheeler's History of North Carolina, p. 73; Colonial Records, North Carolina, Vol. X., p. 224.

5. Member of the committee appointed by the Provincial Congress, August 23, 1775, to interview the Highlanders, and explain to them the nature of the controversy with Great Britain.—Colonial Records, North Carolina, Vol. X., p. 173.

6. "Member of North Carolina Senate," 1787, 1788 and 1789.—Wheeler's History of North Carolina, p. 131.

Of his own family there came with him to this country his brother Hector, who returned to Scotland, and was lost to view; his sisters, Mary, Grissella and Isabella. Hector McAllister sold his estates to his brother Alexander before leaving. Grissella McAllister died unmarried, but the reappearance of her beautiful name from time to time among the generations of her relations shows that her memory was precious. Isabella McAllister married Farquhard Campbell, who came to this country as the ward of her brother, Alexander; or at least in his care. She married against the wishes of her brother, but the ground of his opposition is not clearly known. Some have thought it due to difference of political views, and that Mr. Campbell was a Tory, while Alexander McAllister was a Whig, as were most of the Scotch who came over before the disaster of Culloden, April 16, 1746, which led to their being bound by ironclad oaths of loyalty to the British crown. Historians are divided as to the politics of Mr. Campbell, and the descendants of both men, unmindful of past differences, walk together as friends and relations, filling honorable stations in many of the Southern States.

Mary McAllister married Hector McNeill.

The object of this volume is to give as accurately as possible the descendants and marriages of descendants, etc., of Alexander McAllister, Mary McAllister and Isabella McAllister, with any valuable scraps of history that can be profitably inserted. This work I began in July, 1870, and wrote all the early part of the genealogy at the home of my venerable Aunt Charity McAllister, of Wade, N. C., and at her dictation. Then for twenty-seven years I added scarcely anything to the book, which I had given to my sister, Mrs.

McSwain, of Wade, N. C. A few new names were added by some one, and my venerable uncle and excellent guardian, Hugh McLean, Esq., (1810–1899), Dickinson, N. C., inserted valuable data, giving the dates and also the information that Colonel McAllister was married three times, While Aunt Charity McAllister (1802–1889) reported only the two wives, who had issue. This difference does not affect the record, as the first wife left no children, and it gives to our rather prosy work a flavor of romance, when we think of the death of the fair young bride at sea, and reflect upon the influence this early affliction had upon the robust life of the noble young Scotchman.

The renewal of the work upon this book was in this wise: Two inquiries as to descent and tracing of kinship came to me from two different States in the autumn of 1897, and in the effort to answer them, I sought the old book of 1870, which I at length found in the hands of a cousin, Ed. R. MacKethan, of Savannah, Ga. To him I am indebted for the historical and colonial record proofs of the offices held by my great-grandfather, and his great-great-grandfather, Col. Alexander McAllister. Most valued aid has been given by Mrs. Mary Shaw Greene, of Lillington, N. C., a great-great-granddaughter of Farquhard Campbell, and Isabella McAllister; by W. J. Smith, Godwin, N. C., a great-grandson of Farquhard Campbell and Isabella McAllister; by Maj. C. A. Poellnitz, of Greensboro, Ala., a great-great-grandson of Col. McAllister, and by Mrs. J. H.

McDuffie, 1302 Third Avenue, Columbus, Ga., a great-great-granddaughter of Col. Alexander McAllister. To these, and to others who have aided me in this work, I extend my hearty thanks.

The work has been a labor of love to me, although there have been many discouragements. I hope it will be acceptable and profitable to the hosts of kindred. It claims only to be the best I could do under the circumstances. I have always been a busy pastor, and have found it pleasant recreation to work at the book. I have spent my whole manhood working for the Master away from kindred and the associations of youth, and so I have handled their names with a peculiar tenderness of affection; and across the chasm of separation I fling the warmest greeting of loyal kinship to the known and unknown kindred, trusting, in God's mercy, to meet and greet them all in the kingdom of glory, if not in the beautiful world God gives us as a temporary home.

D. S. McALLISTER.

The spelling of the name "McAlester" is a question of some interest to many persons. Some write "McAlister," some "McAllister," others "MacAlister" or "MacAllister" or "MacAlester," as pleases the fancy best. In the old Bluff Church yard, where lies the sacred dust of the Cumberland county McAllisters, the tombstones have the name spelled four ways—McAllister, McAllester, McAlister, and McAlester; not one has the MacAllister way of writing the name.

Dr. David McAllister used always to spell the name McAlester, and I, being named for him, used that spelling till the death of my father, in 1857. He spelled the name McAllister, and we, his children, agreed to spell the name as he had done. Eminent men of the name in our Western States spell it this way, and it has a most symmetrical appearance. But an old letter to Col. McAllister, dated Jura, August 17, 1770, has the name spelled McAlester. This seems to harmonize best with the etymology of the name, as "Mac" means "son of," and "Alester" means "Alexander," and is very much more like Alexander than "Allister" can be.

I think the spelling of the Scotch names by writing all letters on the same line, and especially making all letters small except the "Mc," is a modern innovation; thus, Mclean, Mackay, or even MacLean and MacKay. A good many plain people pronounce our name McColister, and this comes from former inability of the non-Scotch people to say "McArleester," as it is pronounced in Gaelic. People would not take Scotch pains to call it right, and they said "McColister," which I hear even to this day. It seems to me that ancient usage and custom favor "McAlester," though one excellent family of our people in North Carolina spell the name "McAlister." I do not think position of the "Mac" distinguishes the Scotch from the Irish, for the Irish "Macs" are of Scotch origin.

AUTHOR.

FAMILY ANCESTRY.[1]

MacAlester, of Loup and Kennox.

Lineage.—McAlester, of the Loup, is descended in a direct line from Alester, or Alexander, eldest son of Angus Mor, Lord of the Isles and Kintyre, A. D., 1284.

Alexander acquired large additions to his territories by marriage with Amie, one of the daughters and co-heiresses of Ewin de Ergadia, but having espoused the cause of Baliol, in opposition to the claims of Robert Bruce to the Scottish throne, he was defeated by that monarch, who besieged him in his principal stronghold of Castle Swain; being forced to surrender, he was imprisoned in Dundonald Castle, where he died. His possessions were bestowed on his younger brother, Angus Oge, who assumed the lordship of the Isles, and from whom are descended the various chieftains of the McDonald tribes; but the McAlesters possessing that jus sanguinis, of which no forfeiture could deprive them, claim to represent the ancient Lords of the Isles, as lineal descendants and heirs male of Alester, eldest son of Angus Mor, who was the son of Donald, the son of Reginald, son of Somerled, Lord of the Isles and Thane of Argyll, A. D. 1040, the common ancestor of the Clan Donald, Clan Dugall and Clan Alester, known also as the Clan Ean-Dubh. The sons of Alester, with their adherents, being driven from the Isles, sought refuge on the mainland, and obtained possession of several strongholds in Knapdale and Kintyre. On the overthrow of the dynasty of the Isles, in the reign of James IV., A. D. 1493, they became a separate and independent clan, under their chief, Ean Dubh, who fixed his residence at Ardpatrick, in South Knapdale, and for several generations his descendants retained the patronymic of Vic-Ean-Dubh. He was succeeded by his son,

Charles, appointed Steward of Kintyre, A. D. 1481. He was succeeded by his son, Angus Vic-Ean-Dubh, styled also Angus McAlester, of the Loup. He is mentioned in the Register of the Privy Seal, A. D. 1515. He was succeeded by his son, Alexander, mentioned in Pitcairn's Criminal Trials as having incurred the penalty of forfeiture for treasonably abiding from the army of Sulloway, but obtained, in 1540, remission of the sentence for himself and fifteen of the clan. He left a son,

Hector McAlester, who did not long survive. He was succeeded by his son, Alexander McAlester, who, in 1573, obtained a charter from Archibald, Earl of Argyll. His name appears on the roll as one of those who, by act of Parliament, were called upon to deliver hostages, whose lives were to be held responsible for the obedience of their chiefs. At his death his son and successor,

Godfrey McAlester, was yet a minor. In 1591, he obtained a charter from the Earl of Argyll, and therein is designated Gorrie McEachine Vic-Alester Vic-Ean-Dubh. At an early age he became the hero of a tragedy still remembered in the Highlands, the heads of which are given in Pitcairn's Criminal Trials. He took an active part in most of the feuds and conflicts of the troubled period in which he lived. He closed his turbulent career about the beginning of the seventeenth century, and was buried at Iona, in the tomb of his ancestors. His statue, in black marble, was to be seen there within the last century. He was succeeded by his son,

Hector McAlester, who had charters from the Earl of Argyll for the lands of Loup and others, being therein designated Hector McGorry-Vic-Eachine-Vic-Allister-Vic-Ean-Dubh. He married 11th March, 1620, Margaret, daughter of Campbell, of Kilberry. His son and successor, Godfrey McAlester, of Loup, married a daughter of Sir Robert Montgomerie, of Skelmorlie. His son and successor, Alexander McAlester, supported the cause of James VII. to the last, and was engaged at the battles of Killicrankie and the Boyne. He married Jane, daughter of Sir James Campbell, Bart., of Auchenbreck, by whom he had a numerous family. (The third son, Duncan, settled in Holland, and was father of Gen. Robert McAlester, who commanded the Scots Brigade.) The eldest son of Alexander,

Hector McAlester, died without issue, and was succeeded by his brother, Charles McAlester, married Christina, daughter of Lamont, of Lamont, by whom he had two sons, Angus, his heir, and Archibald, who for many years commanded the Thirty-fifth Regiment. He died a lieutenant-general, leaving a large family. His eldest son, Charles, was lieutenant-colonel of the Ceylon Rifles.

Angus McAlester, who succeeded his father, married his cousin Jane, daughter of McDonald of Ardnacroish, and cousin to the celebrated Flora McDonald, and was succeeded by his only son,

Charles McAlester, J. P., and D. L., lieutenant-colonel commandant First Ayrshire Local Militia, born 13th January, 1765; married 28th March, 1792, Jessie, daughter and heiress of William Somerville, of Kennox, County Ayr, by his wife Lilias, daughter and co-heir of Gabriel Porterfield, of Hapland, and had issue, Charles Somerville McAlester, present representative.

James of Chapeltown.

IV. NEILL MCALLISTER died unmarried, it is supposed by some. One tradition says he was a lieutenant in the American army in the war of the revolution. Another says he was in the British army, stationed at Wilmington, when the war began, and that he continued in that army through the war, and afterwards visited his relatives on the Upper Cape Fear, went to Canada, and was lost to view. He is the probable ancestor of the McAllisters of our Western States. But his name appears as a member of the Cincinnati, which is made up of officers of the United States army and their descendants. This proves that he was in the Colonial army, and not in the British. (See Colonial Records of North Carolina, Vol. X., pp. 187, 189, 955.)

[1] He was a son of Archibald McNeill and his wife, Jennie Smith. Jennie (bahn[2]) McNeill was the heroine of the following story: The Tories had caught her favorite horse and brought it into the yard with much exultation, She asked permission to bid the poor creature good-bye. She began caressing her, and gradually slipping her hand toward the head till it touched the bridle, which she slipped off, and giving her a sharp stroke with the reins, said, "Go, you b——!" then turning to the Tories, "Catch her if you can," and this was impossible in the great plantation. Her wonderful industry was the refrain of a song I heard when a boy:

"Up stairs, down stairs, Jennie bahn the weaver!"

[2] "Bahn" means "fair."

His record here closes.

These last, with their father, went to Tennessee many years ago, before the war between the States.

Mr. Neill Galbraith, first husband of Flora McKethan, was killed by lightning at his home, on the east side of the Cape Fear River, on what is still called the Kyle field, and occasionally the Galbraith field (pronounced Culbreath), which is now the property of the Rev. D. S. McAllister.

Colonel Atkins is said to have been a remarkably handsome man, whose appearance in any assembly of people would elicit the question, "Who is that man?" He was also one of very fine abilities, but his life seems to have been blighted by the killing with his own hand of Mr. Archibald McDiarmid, a rival candidate for legislative honors in North Carolina. It is said that they were seen earnestly talking together at a place where they had met for public speaking. McDiarmid threw up his hand as if to strike, and Atkins shot him. He then stooped over the prostrate body, felt for the now still heart, and rising said, "Gentlemen, I surrender myself to the laws of my country." Two great families divided on the issue. There was a great trial. Atkins was cleared by a witness, who, having testified that Atkins threatened to kill McDiarmid, was compelled on cross examination to say that this threat, so unusual for Atkins, was called forth by a like threat reported from McDiarmid.

TO CAPTAIN DANL. MCDOUGALD,

Who fell mortally wounded in the fight at Malvern Hill. He commanded the Harnett Light Infantry of 15th N. C. T.

Sleep, friend and hero, sweetly sleep,
Secure from rugged war's alarms,
Whilst o'er our land its whirlwinds sweep,
And bugles sound "to arms! to arms!"

Thou hear'st no more the angry strife
Of armies rushing fiercely on,
To fields where glory, honor, life,
Are sternly lost or bravely won.

Thy patriot heart beats high no more
  To see thy country's banner wave,
To hear her trusty cannon roar,
  Or war-song chanted by the brave.

'Neath Malvern's dark and bloody brow
  The vandal's missile laid thee low;
Thou bravely met'st thy fate, and now
  The shrubs of mourning o'er thee grow.

Thy war-worn comrades will return,
  And fire the solemn farewell shot
Above their young commander's urn,
  A sad yet hallowed spot.

Then sleep, dear friend, the cause you loved
  Defended in the glorious fight,
Heroes will save with hearts unmoved;
  God will protect the right.

Henry Thomas McKay and Fannie McKay, daughter of A. A. and Katharine McKay, were married at home, near Memphis, Tenn., January

4, 1854, by Rev. J. H. Grey, D. D. pastor of Second Presbyterian Church, in Memphis. They moved to Arkansas March 25, 1856, and located on a large plantation of the Mississippi bottom lands, near Helena, Ark., where he was known well, and respected by all as a good man and a successful planter. His was the life of a true man, a true Christian, was ruling elder in the Presbyterian Church at Helena, of which Rev. T. R. Welsh, late of Little Rock, was pastor. Theirs was a happy life, and its tenor flowed evenly on until the last year of the war between the States. None need be told the trials of the South at that period. With property all gone and little to begin life anew, they were ever hopeful. In April, 1863, he moved from Helena to a small farm in Lonoke county, where he was assassinated two years later at his own doorstep, leaving a wife and six children. Life for the lonely wife after this was no easy problem, and oftentime might have been almost ready to despair had it not been for her faith in God, and kind friends who came to her aid. Amongst those who will ever find a bright place in the memory of her and her family are Dr. Thomas R. Welsh, and Rev. J. W. Moore. To Dr. Welsh is due the education of her children, and to Rev. Moore his ever ready sympathy and advice, as well as many other substantial gifts. Now her work of raising her family is all done, and well done, and, still in the prime of life at the age of sixty-six years, she can look back on her past as a troubled dream. Her home is with her oldest living child, Mrs. Williams and her husband.

To H. T. and Fannie McKay were born seven children. The oldest, Kate Phereba McKay, was born November 22, 1854. She was married to R. P. Wilcox March 4, 1875, by Rev. T. R. Welsh, D. D., of Little Rock, Ark. To them was born one girl, named Maggie McKay Wilcox. After the death of her husband, which occurred October 31, 1876, she maintained herself and child by occupying her husband's position in the Bellefonte College. On November 5, 1879, she was married to Rev. F. A. Jeffett, of the First M. E. Church, South, at Bellefonte, Ark., by Rev. W. W. Killough. To this happy couple were born five children—one girl, Fannie Annett Jeffett, and four boys, Frank Asbury Jeffett, William, Fletcher and Sidney Julks Jeffett. Frank Asbury died at the age of eight months. Thomas, their second son, died at the age of two years, six months. After years of patient, loving labor for her little family, Kate Jeffett died the death of a child of God, June 26, 1890, at Searcy, Ark., leaving a devoted husband and four children. Much might be said of this lovely woman, many quotations from expressions of her many friends, but words are inadequate to express the love and respect of all who knew her. As a daughter and sister she was ever kind and true, a devoted wife, a faithful, patient mother.

The second daughter, Bell Bethune McKay, was born February 12, 1856, near Memphis, Tenn. She was married to R. S. Powers, a mechanic, October 25, 1876, at Sylvania, Ark., by the Rev. R. S. Crozier. To them were born three boys, Arthur Foster, John Lewis and Henry William Powers. After a short and happy life as wife and mother, Bell Bethune Powers died as she had lived, a true and devoted Christian, October 14, 1881, in Morrelton, Ark. She was faithful in all the relations of life; as a daughter, dutiful and loving; as a wife, a true helpmeet to her husband; as a mother, tender and watchful. God gave to her three boys, which she dedicated to his service, and tried to impress upon them the blessed lessons of truth which she had long before learned from the lips of a pious and loving mother.

The third daughter, Fannie Tom McKay, was born August 18, 1857, at her grandfather's, Archie McKay, near Austin, Ark. She was married November 5, 1880, to Robert Williams, from Longford, Ireland, now located in Wichita, Kan., and doing a merchandise brokerage business. No children were born to them.

Fourth daughter, Izilla Mooney, was born January 2, 1859, at Helena, Ark., and died at the age of two years and five months.

Fifth daughter, Netty Jane McKay, was born June 14, 1860, near Helena, Ark. She was married to J. F. Walker May 27, 1875, at her home, Sylvania, Ark., by Rev. R. S. Crozier. Hon. J. F. Walker is well known throughout the South, having held many honorable positions in the State of Arkansas. He is now living in Southern Missouri, and is professor of schools. To this couple were born a large family of two boys and six girls—John Fletcher, Edna Earl, Prentice Knight, Fannie Bell, Kate Jeffett, Myrtle Green, Ruby Williams and Hallie J. Walker. Of these all are living except Prentice Knight, who died at the age of eleven months. John Fletcher is married, has two children, Sybil and Edna. The first great-grandchildren of H. T. and Fannie McKay.

Sixth girl, Flora Anna McKay, was born March 10, 1862. She was married to S. P. Green, M. D., August 12, 1883, at Bellefonte, Ark., by Rev. J. P. Caloway, M. E. Church, South. No children were born to this couple, though they have done the good work of rearing two, Maggie McKay Wilcox and Arthur Foster Powers, since the death of their mothers. Foster Powers, with Dr. Green, is now in the gold fields of Klondike.

The seventh, a boy, Henry Murphy McKay, was born March 18, 1864. He was married to Miss Eva Irene Hazen, November 15, 1885, at Bellefonte, Ark., by Rev. L. Stogton. To them six children are born—four girls and two boys, Flodie Olive McKay, Lillie Norine McKay, Thomas Hazen McKay, Doc Williams McKay, Anna Irena McKay and Izilla McKay. Henry M. McKay made the run for a new home in the Oklahoma Territory February, 1894. He secured a good farm claim, which is now his home.

John Fletcher Walker, son of J. T. and Nettie Walker, was married to Miss Jennie Hughes, September 6, 1896. Fletcher, like his father, is professor of schools. To them are born two little girls—Sybil S. Walker and Edna E. Walker, first children of the fourth generation of A. A. and Katharine McKay.

II.–2, CHARITY MCALLISTER, "Aunt Charity," was a model of Christian womanhood, a sweet humility crowned her robust graces. I knew her well for forty years, and never saw her angry. My dying mother gave me into her arms when I was only eleven months old, and she was a true and good mother to me. She was large-hearted, and generous to a fault; the sick and afflicted called themselves blessed when they had her gentle and efficient ministry. Her name was Charity, and she was charity! and yet, in the mysterious providence of God, she was foully murdered in her own home by a maniac whom she had never seen, and who had never seen her till the fatal moment, 9:30 A. C., until December of that year; then on Town Creek taught a private school from January, 1867, to June, 1868. Entered college at Davidson in September, 1868, and graduated with the largest class (thirty-one) that has ever graduated there, second in the class, average 98.44 (T. H. C., and accepted; began first Sabbath of June, 1899, in Rock Hill, where he now lives.

Issue by second wife: Two babes were born, both died in childhood.

Alexander McAllister was the father of the author. He was a most genial, lovable man, a strong man physically and intellectually, a man full of faith and of the Holy Ghost. He was one of a noble bench of elders in the Old Bluff Church in Fayetteville Presbytery. He was never known to be excited or angry in debate, and could not be provoked into a quarrel. His ready sympathy led to his being greatly sought as a surety, and in this way his fine estate was finally wrecked. Over thirty thousand dollars' worth of property was sold after his death. He was killed by lightning while superintending work on his farm; and wore in death the same sweet smile which was one of the charms of his noble face. Our pastor, the Rev. D. D. McBryde, who was with him the day and night before his decease, reported that in a conversation between them father said, "I have not long to live, but I have made my peace with God, and am ready to go." He never knew what it was to be afraid. He leaves his children the legacy of a life of integrity, piety and truth, and on his tomb might be inscribed the same words that mark his own father's last resting place:

> "Tread softly, stranger; this is sacred earth;
> Truth, virtue, magnanimity, and worth
> Sleep in silence here."

II.–5, DAVID MCALLISTER (M. D.), died in Philadelphia, just after completing his medical course at Jefferson College; was buried there, and his fellow-students erected a monument to his memory. He and Rev. H. McAllister were honor graduates of the University of North Carolina. He was a man of rare gifts and rich promise. Nothing could be more truly or more beautifully eulogistic than the reverence and affection with which his brothers and sisters repeated the expressions and quoted the opinions of "Brother David."

II.–6, REV. HECTOR MCALLISTER, University of North Carolina, Union Theological Seminary, married Sarah Ann Womack, of Virginia. He was a faithful preacher of the gospel, and a life-long, honored member of Fayetteville Presbytery. Issue: 1, James Watson, died in infancy. 2, Sarah Margaret, died in infancy. 3, Mary Rachel. 4, David Alexander, merchant, bachelor, Wade, N. C.

II.–10, EDITH ISABELLA MCALLISTER, born March 21, 1819; died April, 1873. A life-long invalid; a most energetic, industrious woman; she was never known to sing anything but a psalm or a hymn. A devoted Sunday-school worker, she gave a nice library to Bluff Church Sunday-school. I had the privilege of marking and numbering the books in my childish hand. She was most loyal to her friends and kindred. She entered the kingdom through much tribulation.

Gen. Charles Augustus Poellnitz was born September 1, 1807, in Marlboro District, S. C., graduated at South Carolina College, studied law with Hon. William C. Preston, removed to Linden, Marengo county, Ala., in 1835. He was for more than fifty years a ruling elder in Montpelier Church. He gave the land and contributed liberally to the building of the church. He died January 25, 1891. Of ten children, one son and two daughters survived him in 1898.

The following concerning Gen. Charles Augustus Poellnitz was written by the Rev. A. J. Witherspoon, D. D., which will be read with interest:

"General Poellnitz was born in Marlboro District, S. C., September 1, 1807, and his love for his native State knew no decline. After leaving South Carolina College, where he was graduated with distinction, and where he was closely associated with James H. Thornwell, whom he greatly admired, Mr. Poellnitz studied law under Col. William C. Preston at Columbia. He practiced in the courts of South Carolina, and for a short time at Linden, Ala., but finally abandoned law to devote himself to planting.

"Before leaving South Carolina he married the beautiful Miss Mary Peay, of Fairfield, a lovely woman of much culture; a true Christian, known by her good deeds and kind words. This devoted wife filled his life with sunshine for more than fifty-seven years, and died but a short time before him.

"After conversion under the preaching of the Rev. Thomas S. Witherspoon, he joined the Presbyterian Church, and was for upwards of fifty years a ruling elder in Montpelier Church. Giving the ground—a lovely spot—and largely contributing to the building, General and Mrs. Poellnitz in a great measure supported this church. His end was peace. Writing to a beloved daughter, a few days before his death, he said, 'I am quietly waiting for the Master's call to heaven, sweet heaven.'

"General Poellnitz removed to Marengo county, Ala., in 1835, and was ever afterwards one of its most distinguished citizens. He had great energy, and was a large and successful planter. In a handsome home, adorned with wealth and with taste, where the most refined hospitality ever reigned, General and Mrs. Poellnitz brought up their large family of ten children, educating them carefully, and giving them all other advantages. Seven beautiful daughters grew to womanhood; four of these daughters, Major Charles A. Poellnitz, his only son, and many grandchildren and great-grandchildren survive him. His children, all members of the Presbyterian Church, are useful and influential members of society.

"General Poellnitz was the grandson of Baron Poellnitz, one of the distinguished foreigners who tendered their services to General Washington, and to whom Congress granted a tract of land, then outside, but now in the heart of New York City. This land Baron Poellnitz exchanged with Captain Randall for a plantation in South Carolina. The New York property was left by Captain Randall to found a home for seamen, and the proceeds have established the famous home at Snug Harbor.

"The writer was at one time General Poellnitz's pastor, and for long years enjoyed his friendship. He was always a friend to the minister and his family."

He died at his home, in Marengo county, Ala., January 25, 1891, aged eighty-three years, four months and twenty-four days.

Col. H. McA. McKethan was a promising young business man in Fayetteville, N. C., with his father, in the great carriage works. At the beginning of the war he entered the service of the Confederacy as one of the lieutenants of the "Old Independent Company" of Fayetteville, N. C., F. I. L. I. By act of legislature, all the lieutenants of this company ranked as captains, and the captain as major. In the First North Carolina Volunteers this company first saw war. At the close of their six months enlistment, young McKethan enlisted a company for the war, and by unparalleled bravery and assiduous attention to duty became the honored colonel of the valiant Fifty-first North Carolina Volunteers, distinguished on many a bloody field. His men called him "Old Hec.," and said he did not know what fear was. With his health wrecked by the vicissitudes of war, he lived with his father in Fayetteville, and there died, without issue. He never got over the disaster at Fort Harrison.

APPENDIX B.

JEAN COLVIN'S COVENANT WITH GOD.

Eternal and unchangeable Jehovah! Thou great Creator of heaven and earth, and adorable Lord of angels and men, I desire, with the deepest humiliation and abasement of soul, to fall down at this time in thine awful presence and earnestly pray that thou wilt penetrate my very heart with a suitable sense of thine unutterable and inconceivable glories. Trembling may justly take hold upon me when I, a sinful worm, presume to lift up my voice to thee, presume to appear in thy majestic presence on such an occasion as this. Who am I, O Lord God? and what is my house? What is my nature or descent, my character and desert that I should speak of this, and desire that I should be a party in a covenant when thou the King (of kings) and Lord of lords art the other. I blush and am confounded even to mention it before thee, but, O Lord! great is thy majesty, so also is thy mercy. If thou wilt hold converse with any of thy creatures, thy superlatively exalted nature must infinitely love. And I know that in and through Jesus, the Son of thy love, thou condescendest to visit sinful mortals and to allow their approach to thee and their covenant intercourse with thee. Nay, I know that scheme and plan are thine own, and thou hast graciously sent to propose them to us, as none untaught by thee would be able to form them when actually proposed. To thee, therefore, do I now come, invited by the name of thy Son, and trusting his righteousness and grace lay myself at thy feet, with shame and confusion of face, and smiting upon my breast, I say, with the publican, God be merciful to me a sinner! I acknowledge, O Lord, that I have been a great transgressor; my sins have reached up to heaven, and iniquities are lifted up to the sky. The propensities of my corrupted and degenerate nature have in ten thousand instances wrought to bring forth fruit unto death, and if thou shouldest be strict to mark mine iniquities, I must be silent under a load of guilt, and immediately sink into destruction. But thou hast graciously called me to return unto thee, though I have been a wandering sheep, a prodigal, a backsliding child. Behold, therefore, O Lord, I come unto thee. I am convinced not only of my sin, but of my folly. I come from my very heart, ashamed of myself, and with an acknowledgment in the sincerity of my soul that I have played the fool and have erred exceedingly. I am confounded myself at the remembrance of those things, but be thou merciful to my unrighteousness and remember not against me my sins and my transgressions. Permit me, O Lord, to bring back unto thee those faculties and powers which I have ungratefully and sacrilegiously alienated from thy service, and receive, I beseech thee, thy poor revolted creature, who is now convinced of thy right to her, and desires nothing in the world so much as to be thine. Blessed God, it is with the utmost solemnity that I make this surrender of myself to thee. Hear, O heavens! and give ear, O earth! I avouch this day the Lord to be my God, and I avouch and declare myself to be one of his covenant people and children. Hear, O Lord of heaven, and record in the book of thy remembrance that I henceforth am thine, entirely thine. I would not merely consecrate unto thee some of my powers, or some of my possessions, or give thee a certain portion of my services, or all I am capable of for a limited time, but I would be wholly thine and thine forever. From this day do I renounce all the former lords which have had dominion over me; every sin and every lust and in thy name proclaim an eternal defiance to all the powers of hell, which have most usurped the empire of my soul, and to all the corruption which their fatal temptations introduced into it. The whole frame of my nature, all the faculties of my mind, and all the members of my body would I present before thee this day a living sacrifice, holy and acceptable unto God, which I know to be my most reasonable service. To thee I consecrate all my worldly possessions.

In thy service I desire to spend the remainder of my days on earth, and beg that thou wouldst instruct and influence me, so that whether my abode here be longer or shorter every year and month, every day and hour may be used in such a manner as shall most effectually promote thine honor and subserve the schemes of thy wise and gracious providence; and earnestly pray that whatever influence thou givest me over others in any of the superior relations of life in which I may stand, or in consequence of any peculiar regard which may be paid to me, thou wouldst give me strength and courage to exert myself to the utmost for thy glory, resolving that not only I myself will do it, but all others, as far as I can cautiously and properly influence them, shall serve the Lord. In thee, O blessed God! would I steadily persevere to the end of my life, earnestly praying that every future day may supply the deficiencies of the former, and that, by Divine grace, I may be enabled to hold on to it. Nor do I only consecrate all that I am and have to thy service, but I also most humbly resign and submit to thy holy and sovereign will myself and all that I can call mine. I leave, O Lord, to thy management and possession, all I possess and all I wish, and set every enjoyment and every interest before thee to be disposed of as thou pleasest. Continue or remove what thou hast given me, bestow or refuse what I imagine I want, as thou, Lord, shalt see good, and, though I dare not say I will never repine, yet I hope I may venture to say that I will labor not only to submit and acquiesce in thy most afflictive dispensations, but to consent, and praise thee for it, contentedly resolving that in all thou appointest for me my will unto thine, and looking on myself as nothing and on thee, O Lord, as the great eternal All, whose word ought to determine everything, and whose government ought to be the joy of the whole rational creation. Use me, O Lord, as the instrument of thy glory, and honor me as far as either by doing or suffering what thou shalt appoint, to bring some revenue of praise to thee and of benefit to the world where I dwell. And may it please thee from this day forward to number me among thy peculiar people, that I may no more be a stranger and foreigner, but a fellow-citizen with the saints (and) of the household of God. Receive, O Heavenly Father, thy returning prodigal, and wash me in the blood of thy dear Son, clothe me in his perfect righteousness, and sanctify throughout by the power of thy spirit. Destroy, I beseech thee, more and more the power of sin in mine heart. Transform me into thine own image, and fashion me to the resemblance of Jesus, whom henceforth I would acknowledge as my only teacher and sacrifice, my Intercessor and Lord. Communicate to me, I beseech thee, all useful influences of thy purifying, thy cheering and comforting spirit, and lift up the light of thy countenance upon me, which will put the sublimest joy and gladness into my soul. Dispose my affairs, O God, in a manner which shall be most subservient to thy glory and my own true happiness. And when I have done and borne thy will on earth, call me from hence at what time and in what manner thou pleasest. Only grant that in my dying moments and in the near prospects of eternity, I may remember these my engagements to thee, and may enjoy my latest breath in thy service; and do thou Lord, when thou seest the agonies of dissolving nature upon me, remember thy covenant too, even though I should be incapable of remembering it. Look down, O my Heavenly Father, with a pitying eye upon thy languishing, thy dying child; place thine everlasting arms underneath for my support, put strength and confidence into my departing spirit, and receive it to the embrace of thy everlasting love. Welcome it to the abode of them that sleep in Jesus to await with them that glorious day when the last of thy promises to thy covenant people shall be fulfilled in their triumphant resurrection, and that abundant embrace which shall be administered to them in that everlasting kingdom of which thou hast assured them by thy covenant, and in the hope of which I now lay hold on it, desiring to live and to die as (with) my hand on that hope, and when I am thus numbered with the dead, and all the interests of mortality are over with me forever, if this solemn memorial should chance to fall into the hands of any of my surviving friends, may it be the means of making serious impressions on their minds, may they read it, not only as my language, but as their own, and learn to fear the Lord their God, and with me to put their trust under the shadow of his wing for time and for eternity, and may they also learn to adore with me that grace which inclines our hearts to enter into the covenant, and condescend to admit us into it when so inclined, ascribing with me and all the redeemed, to the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost, that glory and honor and praise which are so justly due to each divine person for the part he bears in their illustrious work. Amen.

Churches for thirty-five years, and I am very glad to get his name and hers in the record, and to see my valiant young kinsman so worthily wedded, as well as my old pastor's daughter in such good hands. Young Williams served gallantly in Cuba in the American-Spanish war, thus repeating the record made by his father and a host of kindred in the war between the States, 1861–1865. The young people were married at Davidson, where good Mrs. McBryde makes her home in term-time for the education of her sons.
